Valle de Maule

Every morning, in the Valley of Maule, the Andes Mountain sun rises initiating the ritual union of land and vine. These dry vineyards situated in the coastal inland of the Pacific "Cordillera" shelter some of the world's oldest "Carignan" vines, many of them reaching more than 80 years of age. This variety, recovered from oblivion, is without a doubt, one of the great treasures of Chile.

TASTING NOTES

Intense dark ruby color, with hints of purple and mahogany on the edges. Warm and dense aromas reminiscent of spices and forests. The elegant palate has silky tannins and notes of fruit (blueberry and blackcurrant jams) over a background of rich vegetal and spicy tones (clove, tobacco, pepper). Barrel ageing has added touches of vanilla and smoke. The varietal character of the old Cariñena vines is outstanding in the long and intense aftertaste.

GRAPE VARIETIES
