

Domaine
NICOLAS ROSSIGNOL

Bourgogne Rouge

Geography : Blend of different plots from the plain of Volnay and Pommard.

Soil and environment : Poor soil with good draining capacity.

The vine : 20 to 50 year-old vines.

The wine : Soft and fruity. Doesn't require a lot of aging, except for specific vintages. Silky tannins due to its origin.

Accolades

The Côte de Beaune's enfant terrible has produced a lovely set of wines in 2015, beginning with a beautiful Bourgogne rouge bursting with deep, juicy dark cherry fruit and framed by rich, supple tannins. This really approaches the ceiling of what is possible with generic Bourgogne. - Decanter

Winery Accolades

Though Rossignol's new winery is located on the outskirts of Beaune, I continue associating this producer with Pommard, since Nicolas Rossignol has several holdings in this appellation, not to mention that his heart clearly lies here. He is garrulous, erudite and passionate when talking about wine, always armed with the insider's gossip about what is really going on in Burgundy. More importantly, I rate him as a superb winemaker, and his wines have progressed since he relocated from the winery shared with his friend Benjamin Leroux. - Vinous

"With a new and luxuriously appointed winery and cellar on the Beaune périphérique and an enviable palette of appellations, the future looks very bright for Nicolas Rossignol, a winemaker who today numbers among the Côte de Beaune's best producers!" - The Wine Advocate
